The Growth of Modern Steamships.

The maximum size of ocean-going steamships has doubled within the last ten years, and prophecies are frequently heard of continuous growth, alike in size and speed. It seems probable, however, that in the immediate future there will be little increase in the size or speed of steamships. Speed does not pay, and some regard must be paid to the depth of harbor channels and the capacity of drydocks. Before vessels larger than the "Lusitania" are designed, there must be some assurance that they can get in and out of the ports which they are likely to visit. Any demands created expanding commerce can easily be met by increasing the number of vessels to be devoted to it and by increasing the frequency of sailing dates.

Every knot of speed added beyond a certain point means a more than proportionate expense. And speed is not everything. More than one of the transatlantic lines are noted for the roomy comfort of their steady, slow-traveling boats, which neither pitch unduly in rough seas nor transmit a constant vibration from the engines.—Scientific American.

Mrs. Ada L. Croom, the widely known proprietor of the Croom Hotel, Vaughn, Miss., says: "For several months I suffered with a severe cough,

Dr. King's New Discovery. I began taking it, and three bottles affected a complete cure." The fame of this life

Cold Weather Advice

To all is to beware of coughs and colds on the chest; as neglected they readily lead to pneumonia, consumption or other pulmonary troubles. Just as soon as the cough appears treat it with Ballard's Horehound Syrup the standard cure of America. Use as directed—perfectly harmless. A cure and preventive for all diseases of the lungs. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per

At Last.
Mrs. Silas Bennett was a pher. On a certain dismal occasion some of the neighboring women were condoling with her. With commendable cheerfulness she replied:

"I've raised four girls and three boys, expectin' every time they'd be twins and red headed like their Grandpa Bennett, an' yet they ain't."

"An' I've worried consid'ble over smallpox breakin' out in my big family. So fer 'tain't."

"Last summer durin' July an' August an' mebbe part of September I was real meloncholic, fearin' I'd got an appendix, but I guess I ain't."

"An' through it all it never once occurred to me that I'd be the one to fall through them rotten old meetin' house steps an' break my leg in two places, but I be."

In Extremis.

Late one night a clergyman was called out to minister to an old man—a worker upon the adjacent railway—who was supposed to be dying. The summons was brought by another old man, the elder brother of the stricken one. While he was bustling about, making preparations for departure, the clergyman forgot momentarily the social status of his visitor and asked,
"Is he in extremis?"

The old man was not going to be beaten. "Aye, he's right in, your reverence." After a pause he added as a clincher: "Clean in, poor chap. Right up to the neck, sir."—Cornhill Magazine.

He Had Been There.

Rodrick—Howdy, old man? We are going on a camping trip soon. Did you ever enjoy a camping trip where you had to do your own cooking and sleep beneath the stars? Van Albert—Nope.
Rodrick—What? Do you mean to say you have never been on a camping trip? Van Albert—No. I mean to say that I never enjoyed one.—Chicago News.

Hospitality.

Mamma—Tommy, I see you took two pieces of cake instead of one, as I told you. Why did you do that? Tommy—Well, mamma, I was playing that another little boy was visiting me, and I knew you wouldn't mind me giving him a piece.—Chicago News.

Learning Early.

A Sunday school teacher had been telling her class the story of the good Samaritan. When she asked them what the story meant a little boy said, "It means that when I am in trouble my neighbors must help me."—Universalist Leader.

"Pleasant day!" snorted the chronic kicker. "There's another ridiculous expression."

"Why so?" demanded the man who had used it.

"Because no duty could really be pleasant if it's an actual duty."—Philadelphia Press.

"Marjory, isn't it getting late?" asked Mrs. Munn as she peeped into the parlor at 11:30 and interrupted a conversation between her daughter and her young man.

"Yes, mamma," replied Miss Munn sweetly: "It usually does at this time of night."

"Carroll always looks well dressed," Mrs. Earle remarked approvingly, "yet he can't have much money to spend on clothes."

"That's it," said Mr. Earle knowingly.
"He dresses in good taste because he can't afford things that are in bad taste."

Office Boy—Please, sir, a gentleman called when you was out.

Editor—What did he want?

Office Boy—E said 'e had come to give you a good thrashing.

Editor—What did you tell him?

Office Boy—I said I was sorry you wasn't in.—London Tatler.

A lady, telling her age, remarked that she was born on April 2.

Her husband, who was present, served, "I always thought you were born on April 1."

"People might well think so," responded the lady. "In the choice made of a husband."—Tit-Bits.

Won't Figures Lie?

Mrs. Hoyle—I am just twenty-three Mrs. Doyle—I don't see how you figure it. You were twenty-two when you had your black silk, and you have had a new dress for ten years.— York Press.

"Jove, you acted awfully well tonight!"

"Indeed! The audience did not think so. They did not applaud bit when I made my exit from stage."

"Oh, but I'm sure they were pleased!"—London Opinion.
